THE PHILATELIC INDEX

At the Sixteenth Annual Convention of the American Philatelic Society, which was held at Springfield, Mass., in 1902, Mr. Gordon Ireland proposed that the Association, as it was then called, should undertake some work of a permanent character, and suggested along that line a philatelic "Poole's Index" of periodical literature. The idea appealed to the Convention, and a committee was appointed to start the work. This committee appealed for aid in the gigantic undertaking, but so far as we are aware never received the encouragement that it should have had from the membership at large. A beginning was made and considerable progress reported for several years, but then it seemed to be lost sight of in some way, and no printed result has as yet been produced for the approval of the Society and the benefit of Philately at large.

Nearly two years ago, however, Mr. William R. Ricketts was appointed on the committee, and from time to time there have been evidences that "things were doing." Mr. Ricketts was peculiarly fitted for the task, both from his interest in the work and the vast resources at his command in his magnificent library. The results, we are assured, will be of great permanent value to philatelic research, for practically all of the important periodicals printed in English and a large majority of the minor ones as well have been included. To any one who has had occasion to write up a philatelic subject the lack of such an Index has meant hours of time wasted in hunting up his references. Spasmodic attempts to correct this fault have been made in a few English periodicals, and a few American as well, but nothing as comprehensive as was required has heretofore been undertaken, unless we except Mr. Jex Long's excellent Index of a dozen or more English periodicals from early times down to its date of publication.

At last, however, we have the actual promise of the long awaited comprehensive index of philatelic literature from its beginning to the end of 1910, and not only are the periodicals printed in English thoroughly covered as noted above, but for the sake of including a complete record of new issues from 1863 to 1910, the famous periodicals of M. Moens, Le Timbre-Poste and Le Timbre-Fiscal, have also been included. As a fulfillment of the promise, also, we are very glad to present to the philatelic world in the current number of the American Philatelist the actual beginning of the work, the reference list to be carried on as rapidly as possible in succeeding numbers.

BAVARIA'S CELEBRATION When Galileo was forced by the Inquisition to renounce his belief in the so-called "Copernican System," which made the sun the center of our solar system and the earth to move around it, he is reported to have immediately remarked in an "aside"—E pur si muove, "and yet it does move." The old Inquisitors, hide bound in their traditions and bigotry, held to the Ptolemaic belief that the earth was the immovable center of the Universe and man was supreme. We had almost come to the same conclusion with regard to Bavaria in the Philatelic World—that it was immovable and the current type of stamps was supreme—when lo! she moves, and we have a full fledged commemorative set as up to date as any!

Bavaria's philatelic history has been quite prosaic and therefore eminently respectable, according to present standards. From 1849 to 1911, a period of sixty-two years, there have been but two general types for her postage stamps, the first square design with large central numeral having held the stage for eighteen years, and the succeeding arms design, with but slight modification in details, having satisfied her authorities, at least, for the remaining period. One stamp, indeed, the 1 mark value, has remained absolutely unchanged in design for the last thirty-seven years.

But we must give credit where it belongs, for Bavaria was the first of the German States to adopt the system of adhesive stamps for prepayment of postage, and was likewise the first to use postage due stamps — following France, in fact, among the countries of the world in using this form of stamp.

There seems to have been a general agreement among the German States in avoiding the head of the ruler as a feature of their stamp designs, the arms or numerals of value being preferred, though Prussia, Hanover and Saxony stand out as notable exceptions to this rule. Bavaria has heretofore held to this "unwritten law," and even in the prize competition for new stamp designs, which was so unsuccessfully held in 1908, the same characteristic appeared. But now we are suddenly confronted with a portrait type, and a commemorative series rolled into one. The Associated Press dispatch tells the reason.

"Munich, March 13—The ninetieth birthday of Prince Regent Luitpold was celebrated yesterday throughout Bavaria as a general holiday. Prince Luitpold is most popular throughout the kingdom. He is in good health and went on foot yesterday through the streets of Munich and inspected the decorations that had been hung in honor of his birthday."

The word "Regent" at once brings to mind the fact that though Bavaria has a king who figures in the Almanach de Gotha and other like registers, yet he is almost a fiction for, like his grandfather and brother before him, he belongs to the line of the "Mad Kings of Bavaria," and has never actually ruled. His respectful subjects explain to the visitor that "Otho ist krank" (Otto is sick), but every one knows that his Uncle, Prince Leopold, is and has been the actual sovereign since June 10, 1886. Hence the current year holds a double jubilee for Bavaria's "Grand Old Man," it being the twenty-fifth anniversary of the Regency as well.

We can hardly blame his subjects, therefore, with whom he is so popular, from celebrating even philatelically; for he is one of the strong men, both physically and mentally, that have done so much for Germany—men like old Kaiser Wilhelm, von Moltke and Bismarck.

The new stamps were designed by Prof. Fritz August von Kaulbach and appear in two types, the first showing a profile portrait of the Regent in military uniform, looking toward the left, and the second a portrait in hunting costume, turned toward the right, understood to be from a painting by Prof. von Defreggers. The first type, which comes in two sizes, the higher pfennig values being the dimensions of the current mark stamps, reminds us of the present Belgian issue in its simplicity, which is even more pronounced as there is no ornamentation whatever. The date "12 MAERZ 1911" is almost crowded off the top, while BAYERN stands boldly forth beneath, and the numerals of value with "Pf" are tucked in the two upper corners. The second type, used for the mark values, is quite imposing, being well conceived and really "jaunty" in appearance. The portrait in a square frame is flanked by two fir poles wound with a riband that joins their tops. "1911" alone appears above, and BAYERN between the numerals and an M, forms the base of the design. Lithography is the method of production to be employed, and whether this will give the proper results in making the printed stamps effective in monocolor on tinted paper remains to be seen on their appearance.

ANOTHER ANNIVERSARY On the 6th of May next occurs one of the most important anniversaries of the stamp collector — the date of the first issue of postage stamps. Seventy years—the allotted life of man—have passed since Rowland Hill saw the fruition of his scheme, and the outcome of his untiring efforts to advance postal communication by the combined advantages of cheapness and easy means of prepayment. It is not stretching the facts of the case at all to say that the advancement of modern civilization can be divided into two periods: that before the advent of the postage stamp, and the three score years and ten succeeding; for it must be realized that the greatest civilizing factor for mankind at large is the rapidity and cheapness of means of communication. Without it business—and therefore commerce — must move more slowly or stagnate, and the dissemination of news and knowledge alike must be accomplished by more roundabout and difficult methods.

For this great change in the progress of the world the POSTAGE STAMP stands as the symbol, and it is therefore fitting that some notice should be taken of the anniversary, at least by philatelists, who are the votaries of the cult that holds it dear. Ordinary man may buy his stamp and affix it to his mail without further thought of the power and influenec of the bit of paper; but the stamp collector, at least, knows what it means and venerates it accordingly. Therefore it is that the Penny Black, the progenitor, with its companion the Twopence Blue, of the multitude, good, bad and indifferent that have since followed, will have a Birthday Banquet at the Trocadero in London. There philatelists of note, public men, descendants of those who had a share in its conception and introduction, and all others interested, will pay tribute to the first "Queen's Head" in fitting manner. The celebration will be under the auspices of the Junior Philatelic Society — the Society that "does things"—and in its details we see the traces of that master mind which directs its destinies, Mr. Fred J. Melville. A happy conceit is the plan to arrange for just two hundred and forty guests, that being the number of stamps on a complete sheet of the first adhesive postage stamp. We shall await other details of the affair with great interest.

But one note of sadness intrudes itself upon the occasion. The same date is also the anniversary—the first one—of the death of him whose portrait was first to replace the "Queen's Head" upon British stamps, the one whom all the world had come to call "Edward the Peacemaker," the worthy successor of "Victoria the Good." Respect for the memory of their beloved monarch has caused a change in the date of the actual celebration from Saturday, the 6th of May to Monday, the 8th of the same month. At the proper time on this day, therefore, to correspond with the banquet in London, let us all as good Philatelists lift our glasses to the honor of the Penny Black and to the memory of him who was its sponsor—Sir Rowland Hill! Chaste little stamp, we bow to thee!

An artist knew what thou should'st be:
Simple in form, of neat design,
Inscriptions few, engraving fine.
Thine was a mission yet untried,
But thy success has spread it wide
Throughout the earth, until we see
All nations pay respect to thee.

CANADA.

ITS POSTAGE STAMPS AND POSTAL STATIONERY.

A Review by John N. Luff.

Under the above title, Mr. Clifton A. Howes has written and the New England Stamp Co. have published in handsome style the latest addition to philatelic literature. It is a beautiful book, and one to be highly commended to any one who likes books or is interested in postage stamps. Considering the general popularity of the stamps of British North America, it is surprising that we have had to wait so many years for this volume. While many articles have appeared in the philatelic press, we have only one book of importance—the Royal Society's handbook on the Stamps of the British Colonies in North America, but that excellent work was published in 1889, and the portion devoted to Canada occupies only fourteen pages. But, at last, Canada has come to her own and now we hope that, in due time, the postal issues of the other British North American Colonies may receive equally careful attention. Mr. Howes is so well known as a finished writer that it is hardly necessary to say that the work has been thoroughly done. Whenever he is ready to write about a subject, it may be taken for granted that he has mastered it.

The work opens with a key to the plates, followed by a "Foreword," from which we understand that the original intention was that this work should have been one of the small handbooks now so popular, but the amount of material available made it evident that something on a more extended scale was not only possible but almost unavoidable, if the subject were to be treated at all in accordance with its importance. Following the decision to increase the scope of the work came a trip to Ottawa, to study in the Library of the House of Commons the only complete set available of the reports of the Postmasters-General of Canada. After this came careful study of the material contained in collections, with especial attention, as a matter of course, to the great Pack, Worthington and Seybold collections. Lastly there was the heavy labor of putting in shape the mass of information acquired, a task which has occupied all the author's available time for nearly two years.

The second section is an "Introduction" which devotes a few paragraphs to the early history of Canada and a number of pages to postal matters before the introduction of stamps. Here we find a paragraph of considerable interest to collectors in the United States: "In 1753 Benjamin Franklin received the royal commission as Deputy Postmaster-General for the American Colonies. No man in America had been so identified with the interests of the Colonial postoffice as he, and from 1737 he had been postmaster of Philadelphia. All his energies were devoted to his new work and when Canada passed by treaty to Great Britain in 1763, as already mentioned, his jurisdiction was extended to cover the new territory. It is thus curious to record that the (afterwards) first Postmaster-General of the United States was also the first Postmaster-General of Canada."

In the next chapter we have the preliminaries preceding the issue of stamps, i. e., Acts of Parliament, Department Orders, Notices to Postmasters, Announcement of the proposed first issue of stamps and similar documents. This may be a little dry to people who merely collect stamps, but it is valuable and instructive to those who find an interest in the causes and beginnings of things.

With Chapter II, issue of 1851, we reach the subject of the stamps themselves and find one of the first paragraphs devoted to a careful consideration of the exact date of issue of each of the three denominations which constitute the first series. In describing the designs, Mr. Howes refers to the "double transfer" variety of the 3d, usually known as "line through 'three pence'". He writes as if there were only one of these double transfers on the plate. I have, however, three different varieties of it and, unless my memory is at fault, have seen a fourth. They are much alike in general appearance but a careful examination shows enough differences to prove that there must have been several of these mis-strikes on the plate. On page 33 we find an explanation of the lettering "twelve pence" instead of "one shilling" on the highest denomination of the series.

The next thing is a very careful consideration of the various papers used for the first issue, with especial attention to the quality of wove paper which is usually called "bond" or "bank note" paper, and the "laid" paper. This is one of the most interesting parts of the book, for it revives the much-discussed question of the existence of the 12d on both wove and laid paper. While considering the various opinions and publications referring to this subject, Mr. Howes quotes an anonymous article which was published in Vol. XVII of the "Metropolitan Philatelist" giving a "valuable summary of the first issue of postage stamps used in this Colony." Unless I am greatly mistaken this material was gathered and the article compiled by the late H. G. Mandel, who was greatly interested in the subject and had unusual opportunities to obtain information from original and authentic sources. I mention this as a confirmation of the reliability of the article as a matter of evidence. It would appear that the arguments against the existence of the 12d on wove paper have been largely based on the theory that the first printing was exclusively on laid paper and, since there was only one delivery of the 12d, that value could therefore not exist on wove paper. But we must not lose sight of the fact that this is only an assumption, and there is no evidence in the records or elsewhere that the wove paper was not used from the very beginning. On the contrary, Mr. Howes gives us proof of the early appearance of stamps on wove paper. After a careful presentation and weighing of the evidence, Mr. Howes reaches the conclusion that the 12d stamp was issued on both varieties of paper, with which I am personally in agreement.

Passing to the chapter entitled "The Remaining Pence Issues," we find an able handling of the subject of stamps with wide and narrow oval, with especial reference to the 10d. After presenting much interesting material relating to this subject, the author reaches the conclusion that the differences in the stamps are not due to different dies or varieties in the plates, but to the shrinkage of the paper after wetting and its having been passed through the press either with or across the grain. I would like to add a bit of confirmatory evidence. Some years ago I saw two impressions of the die of the 10d, which I now regret I did not purchase for my reference collection. There were certain scratches outside the design that made it evident that both prints were made from the same die, yet one had the wide and the other the narrow oval, and the only possible conclusion was that the differences were due to one impression being made vertically and the other horizontally to the grain of the paper, together with the known fact that the expansion and shrinkage are usually greater across the fibres than lengthwise.

There is a very good chapter on the perforations of the pence issues, with some interesting paragraphs on the unofficial perforations 13 and 14 and on certain spurious perforations.

The next chapter deals with the early cancellations and gives a list of 52 offices to which were assigned the cancellations having a numeral in the center of four concentric circles. The list is based on some documentary evidence, and has been in part confirmed by the finding of copies on covers. In speaking of the first form of cancellation, seven concentric circles, Mr. Howes says it was generally struck in black but is occasionally found in dull blue. Within a short time some one has called my attention to the pleasing effect of this cancellation struck in red on a 6d violet stamp.

The subsequent chapters give careful accounts and many interesting details of the other issues of postage stamps, as well as the stamps for registration, postage due, special delivery, the official seals and various forms of stationery. Each one is worthy of careful perusal.

The work makes a volume of 287 quarto pages, printed on a specially made, deckle-edged paper. There are fourteen excellent photogravure plates contained in a pocket under the front cover and a fifteenth plate, printed in sepia, serves as a frontispiece. The work is issued in three editions: in paper, bound in red cloth stamped in gold on the back and front cover, and an edition de luxe on Japan paper bound in red morocco.

Those who have had anything to do with philatelic publications, know too well that, almost without exception, they result in a heavy deficit for the publishers, therefore we owe the more thanks to the New England Stamp Co. who have not only faced the anticipated loss on the actual cost of production, but have met heavy preliminary expenses.

In conclusion, I wish to congratulate the author on his careful and erudite handling of his subject, the publishers on having given us such a handsome and meritorious publication, and collectors that they have the opportunity to buy and study a work of such beauty and intrinsic worth.

THE SOCIAL ASPECT OF PHILATELY.

EXEMPLIFIED BY THE RECENT ANNIVERSARY OF THE BOSTON SOCIETY.

By H. N. Mudge.

Of all the many cultivating and broadening features claimed for philately by its devotees, the fact that it brings out the social element in one's nature has not been particularly dwelt on by expounders of the cult, as far as can be recalled. Yet, if one stops to think, is it not true, even after all allowance is made for the fascinating hours spent by one's self in study and work on one's collection, that much of the zest of pursuit and interest in results would be lost were it not for the ultimate pleasures of the "stamp talk" to follow with kindred minds, and the privilege of showing and having one's collection appreciated by others? It is undoubtedly within the experience of all confirmed collectors that their own interest has waned along some specific line of philatelic endeavor on failure to interest others in their point of view. From this, is it not possible that the absorption of stamp lore and the acquisition of holdings is due to the social element in philately to a greater degree than we are apt to realize?

This social attribute finds expression by various outlets, from the neighboring call on a fellow craftsman or a sympathetic admirer to the friendly argument or the dissertation on a new find at the meetings of a local society; and, it might be added. at the annual conventions of the national society. It also manifests itself in phases of wide divergence. It levels all personal distinctions when it comes to matters purely philatelic; and on occasions broadens the feeling of good fellowship beyond that of a technical interest. In other words, it at times develops into comradeship of philatelists at play; in which abandon, however, the dignity and allurements of our science seem never to be lost sight of. And who will disclaim that this feature of our most fascinating pursuit is not conducive to the elevation not only of one's grace of manner and heart, but to the ennoblement of the pursuit itself? Particularly is this so when this social atmosphere is abundantly charged with the ozone of philatelic achievement.

A better practical demonstration of the foregoing could scarcely occur than that of the recent celebration of the Boston Philatelic Society. It happened that this sturdy organization had a twentieth anniversary of its existence to exploit, and into the proceedings of the occasion were most happily instilled the choicest ingredients of rare good fellowship and philatelic enjoyment, delightfully free from any sediment of formal restraint yet tempered with a becoming dignity throughout.

A feature of the amenities of the anniversary was the presence of a large number of guests from various parts of the country, earnest workers all in the cause of philately, who had made the journey to Boston for the express purpose of doing honor to their host, actuated by the social friendliness that philately imbues. There were Messrs. Chas. Lathrop Pack and H. E. Deats from New Jersey, Messrs. Percival Parrish and Eugene Klein from Philadelphia, Messrs. John N. Luff, Jos. S. Rich and two sons, J. M. Bartels, Dr. L. A. Micheloni and John A. Klemann from New York City, Messrs. J. B. McIntyre and F. M. Mason from Provilence, R. I., Messrs. Wm. C. Stone, J. W. Prevost and J. D. Bartlett from Springfield, Mass., W. H. Barnum from Cleveland and H. N. Mudge from Chicago. Then there were the many whom circumstances deterred from being in attendance but whose intent as to being present, or whose interest in the event, prompted letters or messages of regrets or felicitation. Among these were H. R. H. King George of England and Fred J. Melville, president of the Junior Philatelic Society of London. The London Junior Society, the Philatelic Society of Sweden, the Metropolitan Philatelic Association and the local stamp societies of Chicago, Cleveland, Detroit, Washington, Philadelphia and Springfield sent formal greetings; thus showing that the social bond of philately is not confined to individuals.

The proceedings at Boston covered a period formally beginning Friday evening, February 17th, and ending with the banquet on Saturday evening, the 18th. But the effervescent spirit of geniality that prevailed throughout may be said to have had its beginning at the informal dinners on Friday evening, at which were mingled for the first time in purely social intercourse many of the local and out-of-town men. Following came a curtailed regular meeting of the Society, at which, after a few remarks from each of the visitors present, the session was given up to an illustrated lecture by Mr. Luff, he giving, with the assistance of Mr. Rich at the lantern, his talk on "What Philately Teaches," revised and brought down to date.

Saturday afternoon pure philately had its turn in the form of an exhibition. Even that event, however, did not escape the social contamination, for in the room that was well filled for several hours and where the many ladies present were by no means the least interested spectators of the exhibits, there was a constant flow of interesting "stamp-talk." It could scarcely be otherwise with what was on view. A frame of rarities, exhibited by Mr. D. L. Pickman, containing among other gems a Milbury, a Brattleboro, a St. Louis, an Annapolis and a Livingston Confederate, served but to whet the appetite for Mr. Geo. H. Worthington's Mauritius and Mr. C. L. Pack's triangular Cape of Good Hopes and early Brazils. In addition to Mr. Pickman's frame, local philately was handsomely represented by Mr. L. L. Green's Hawaiian numerals, Mr. E. H. Mason's proofs and essays of U. S. envelopes and Mr. E. F. Sawyer's Gambia.

But in the evening, at the banquet, was when the good fellowship reached its climax. Passing over the useful souvenir of a watch fob that was found at each plate, and not to mention the alluring character of the menu, it was when chairs were pushed back, cigars lighted and the "talk was on" that a genial glow of good will, appreciation and at times of dignified merriment put the final seal of a complete social and philatelic success on the entire celebration.

The address of welcome was delivered by the president of the Society, Mr. Willard O. Wylie. A rising toast of appreciation of the American Philatelic Society, most beautifully expressed by the toastmaster, was responded to by the president of that organization, Mr. Mudge. In response to another rising toast, "our new honorary member," Mr. Pack spoke feelingly on the honor conferred, and told of his recent discoveries in early Uruguays, concluding by presenting the Society with a book of photographs of his reconstructed sheets of the Diligencia and Montevideo stamps of that country. Mr. Geo. L. Gilmore related how he came to be charter member No. 1 of the Boston society, his account proving conclusively that the philatelic bonhomie of today also existed twenty years ago. Mr. Bartlett, of Springfield, gave an interesting account of a proselyting stamp exhibition his club was about to make in his city, and Mr. McIntyre told of the Rhode Island Society's recent celebration of its twenty-fifth anniversary. Messrs. Deats and Barnum expressed their appreciation of the occasion, and Messrs. Sawyer and Luff furnished the humor of the evening; the latter with a string of carefully selected and most amusing stories that were thoroughly enjoyed.

But undoubtedly the triumph of the post prandial exercises was the graceful and effective manner in which the Toastmaster, Mr. L. L. Green, introduced the speakers. Whether with flights of sincere and appropripate adulation or in good natured banter, his little interludes were most enjoyable moments of the evening's entertainment. Such was his magnetism, that when as a closing benediction he proposed rising and joining hands while Auld Lang Syne was sung, so lusty a response in the rendering of the song was the result that probably its echoes have not yet died away in the minds of those who heard it.

No apology is needed for going somewhat into detail in the matter of this Boston anniversary, and thereby possibly duplicating phases of it that have been better told elsewhere. The story will bear repeating from the point of view of its being a forceful illustration of the fact that philately has social attributes worthy of cultivation. It may be added, that while the subject selected for illustration happens in this instance to be the picture of a local society, the truth of the assertion, that philately has social attributes worthy of cultivation, is equally applicable as between individuals, local societies or national organizations.

AMERICAN PHILATELIC SOCIETY PHILATELIC INDEX.

INTRODUCTION.

In presenting this Index to the American Philatelic Society, I do so with the understanding that it shall be published just as I furnish the manuscript. The Index has been compiled from my own library, and covers all of the important and most of the minor periodicals published in English. In order to include a complete Chronicle of New Issues from the very beginning of Stamp Collecting down to the present time, the two French magazines, Le Timbre-Poste and Le Timbre-Fiscal, have been added. All articles pertaining to the Literature of Stamps have been excluded, as it is intended to incorporate them in a future "Philatelic Literature Bibliography Index." This will also include all articles pertaining to "Albums," "Catalogues," "Chalmers-Hill Controversy," "Color Charts," etc., and such other general articles as pertain to the general history of Philately, besides all references to the literature itself. This will be divided into two parts, I: General; II: Reviews. The above have not been included in this Index, which is therefore purely philatelic.

Only those who have done this line of work can appreciate the amount of time necessary for compilation, so when I say that it has taken several years in the making it will not occasion surprise.

When I was invited to take the chairmanship of your Philatelic Index Committee in the fall of 1909, it was found that although this committee had been in existence for a number of years, practically nothing had been accomplished towards the compilation, as I have not to date received a line of writing or printed matter in this connection. The other members of the committee were unable to give me any help the first year, but the recent appointment of Mr. Clifford W. Kissinger, of Reading, Pa., on this committee will make a decided difference and relieve me of much detail work.

The need of such an Index has been before the Philatelic World almost from the beginning. Several attempts have been made towards this end, notably "The Philatelic Index" by Wm. A. R. Jex Long, published in 1906, in which fourteen complete files of magazines to 1904 were indexed; "An Index of English Stamp Magazines, from 1862 to 1889," by T. Martin Wears, found in "The Philatelic Journal of Great Britain," Vol. I, 1891, pages 142-163-193, II, 1892, pages 29(1)-45-70; "Review Index," G. Ireland, found in the "Weekly Philatelic Era," Vol. XVIII, and continued in "Mekeel's Weekly Stamp News," Vol. XIX; "Index of the Philatelic Press," by P. C. Bishop, found in the several editions of the "Stamp Collectors' Annual and Year Book of Philately," published by Messrs. C. Nissen & Co., London; but these last two were simply an index of the current papers of the preceding year. For additional data see INDEX, PHILATELIC beyond under "I."

This work is therefore offered to supply this long felt want, and that it succeeds is the only wish of the compiler. I desire to say in conclusion that I have used Mr. Jex Long's Index to the fullest extent in preparing this Index.

EXPLANATIONS.

The first list presented is that of the Subject-Headings upon which the Index is based. They are thus grouped together to assist the searcher in the use of the Index, and to show at a glance under what heading any certain subject is to be looked for.

The next list is one of abbreviations for certain important works that are constantly referred to throughout the Index.

The third list is also one of abbreviations, being the titles of the periodicals indexed. This is an extremely lengthy list, but is of course a necessary one, and is of further value in that it furnishes an alphabetical list of all Stamp Periodicals of worth in the English language. It is the only one so arranged and can be used as a check list. Volumes and numbers are not necessary for this list, as the date and place of publication are sufficient for present purposes.

The Index itself is largely self-explanatory in the light of the foregoing. Under any general subject will be found, if required, the special subject-headings, followed by the references. Volumes are indicated by Roman numerals, followed by the year (and month, if necessary) in parenthesis, and then the pages. A reference continued from one volume to another has the volumes separated by a comma and space. A reprinted article, appearing in several magazines, is treated as if continued, a comma and space separating the magazine references. A semi-colon and dash denote that a particular reference is closed.

All articles that pertain to the stamps have been cross-referenced; other general articles as "Stamp Collecting" and all containing the word "Collecting" are indexed under the single word with sub-headings; the same is true of "Philately," etc. These have not been cross-referenced except in the case of "Stamp Collecting" which is indexed under "S" with the reference "See Collecting."

SUBJECT-HEADINGS.

The following is a list of Subject-Headings used generally for Countries, and as far as possible with General Subjects as well:—

(Gen.),—Short notes pertaining to any or all headings.
Abbreviations on Stamps,—(Including "Inscriptions on Stamps.")
Army Stamps,—See Military Stamps.
Auction Reports,—See Prices.
Authentic.

NEW FEATURES

The Mutual Stamp Exchange has met with such favor and success that the manager is now introducing new features that should appeal to a large number of A. P. S. members as well as active collectors.

We now propose to start an exchange made up of four classes of stamps for collectors.

Class A—Stamps for General Collectors, will include any and all kinds of stamps from 2c up.

Class B—Stamps for Advanced Collectors, will include stamps of any country, in fine condition only, and of stamps that list by catalogue or market price at least $2.00 each used or unused.

Class C—Stamps of U. S. and Colonies only, including all issues, used and unused of Postage, Rev. Cut, Sq. Env., Proofs, Dept. and Seals, anything in U. S.

Class D—Stamps of Great Britain and Colonies, all issues used and unused of any values and prices.

Any member of the A. P. S. can use any one or all of these different classes. The same general rules will apply to all classes. Each class will be started just as soon as enough members send in books to make up a circuit. All stamps must be mounted in books furnished by the Exchange, 6 books 25c, Rules free. The Exchange now places in the collections of A. P. S. members over

3000 STAMPS A MONTH

You better write to-day and get a chance to look at some of the good things. Any collector can use this Exchange by joining the A. P. S. application blank free.

TRADE YOUR DUPLICATES

for stamps you want in your collection. We have 1693 books sent in by A. P. S. members already. Book No. 1403 valued at $ 46.96 has just been retired, all stamps taken. Circuit No. 102 just returned from 6 members and 915 stamps were taken valued at $157.62 and mind you they were all paid for with duplicates.

LARGE SELECTIONS

of stamps on approval at net prices neatly mounted and tabulated in books by Countries, has long been a specialty. They are intended for reliable and extensive buyers that furnish good business references and agree to buy no less than $3 at a time. I do not handle cheap sheets of over-priced stamps and stamps of doubtful character. Everything I send out is plainly and neatly mounted and priced. Leaflet about my system free on request.
